

Giver Chapter 10

- Jonas rides with _____ to the House of the Old. She goes in the normal entrance for her training, and he heads to the Annex for his.
- He buzzes at the door and is allowed inside. The female attendant stands and greets him as " _____," which makes him slightly uncomfortable. She then unlocks the door to The _____ room, which makes him even more uncomfortable, since doors in the community don't have locks on them.
- Jonas goes through the door into what appears to be The _____ living area. It's got a bed, desk, table, etc.
- Most shocking are the _____. Until now, Jonas has only seen _____ for reference or rules. But here are shelves of _____, about what he doesn't know.
- And then Jonas suddenly realizes that, hey, the old _____ is sitting in the corner. Jonas greets him and stumbles about awkwardly in his speech until the old man declares that Jonas is the new _____, so he himself isn't any longer.
- When Jonas remarks on how _____ the man is (which is a compliment, somehow), the old man says he isn't as _____ as he looks, but the job has aged him considerably.
- He then tells Jonas to feel free to ask as many questions as he wants. He explains that his job is to transmit to Jonas all the _____ of the past.
- Jonas says he has some experience with this, like listening to old people tell _____.
- The old man explains that this isn't what he means; he won't be transmitting _____ of his own personal past, but rather _____ of the whole world. "It is how wisdom comes," he explains, "and how we shape our future."
- He pauses to lament the terrible _____ of all these memories.
- It's like going downhill on a _____, he explains. At first it's quick and easy, until the snow builds up on the runners and then you have to push and push to keep going...
- The old man then orders Jonas to take off his tunic and lie face down on the bed. Jonas does so, and then watches the old man go to the wall and turn off the speaker. Every house he's ever been in has one, but Jonas has never seen a speaker with an _____ switch before.
- Jonas asks the old man what he's going to do, and the old man puts his hands on Jonas's back, explaining that he's going to transmit the memory of _____